

library money? I don't see how they can decently refuse to pay it.

I wish if you can you would bring up some cuttings of some dark pelargoniums. We by mistake sold all we had, and are run out.

I shall be glad to see you when you come.

Is there any need of telling you that?

Ever yours.

Wiles, Tuesday.

Dear Billie

I don't know just how to direct to you and so enclose this to Rhoda feeling sure that she will know where you are.

I should be glad to have you home tomorrow for Elsie, Elvies and Elsie Reeder are to be here to spend the day, and I don't feel as if I was any company for any body, but I asked Elsie to come over with them and I suppose they will be company for one another. But what I wanted especially to write about was this. There is to be a party at Mr. Overacker's

Friday night in honor of Sarah's <sup>18th</sup> birthday and you are invited.
Now if you are not willing to go I think you had better have an engagement at Oakland Friday and not come home till Saturday and that will settle the matter.

Wash's sister is here.
I don't know how long
she will stay.

Lupe has not been very well. Cough and dyspepsia.
Is she taking hold in real earnest? Is not the reason that is to let near Caesar but is the one that was occupied by that young man who was sick. If so it is objectionable on account of defective drainage and not to be thought of for you. I thought I should have received a letter from you today

but was disappointed.
Perhaps it went on up
and will come back tonight.

Charlie received the impression at the City that the folks were not very favorably inclined to your plans, but my conclusion on questioning him was that it was the music part which did meet their approval.

I paid Mrs. Bruthers $6. for making your dress which was I think very reasonable.

Do you not mean to try again to get your
